Greeting.

To the Faculty, Student Body, Alumni and Friends:

The Class of 1903 extend greeting.

We realize the responsibility placed upon us and the honor to be upheld in publishing the LANTHORN, and we have labored to discharge our duties faithfully.

We have spared neither time, energy, or expense to make it worthy of your attention and of the honor of the class, as well as our beloved college.

We know it is not perfect; but we have endeavored to make it instructive of college life, with also an aim to please.

So we present to all friends the LANTHORN, and hope for a proportionate measure of pleasure to all in comparison with the laborious work of its production.

To our dear Friend, efficient Teacher and worthy Dean,

JOHN I. WOODRUFF,

Who has always held the students' interests
to be his own, is this book respectfully dedicated by the class of 1903.

JOHN I. WOODRUFF.

In the list of those whose best and noblest efforts have held as an object the advancement of Susquehanna's interests, no name deserves more to stand first than that which heads this sketch.

He is a man of strong and noble character, of quick and ready sympathy, with every movement aimed at progress, and of scholarly attainments that make his perseverance well deserve the success he has won. A man possessing a keen insight of human nature, he has risen to the first place in the Faculty of the school in which he was once enrolled as a student, and in every step of that upward course, he has well demonstrated his competency to deal with the problems presented, and his ability to surmount and conquer the obstacles that stood in his way.

Space forbids the mention of any bigographical facts more than necessary to show the struggle through which he passed, and in spite of these, his irresistible march to the front.

Professor Woodruff was born near Selinsgrove, in 1864, of sturdy and God fearing parents. How well the duty of the parents was performed can best be told by the character of the son they reared. Schools could claim but little of his time, for his parents needed much of it on the farm. But if he spent little time at schools, he spent much in independent study and thought, so that by the time he had reached his eighteenth year he was able to take charge of and successfully conduct a public school near his home. The habits of economy learned so well in the years of association with the earth and its trials, when it but scantily rewarded the efforts of its workers, now stood him in such stead that after teaching two years he was able to attend Missionary Institute. A member of the sub-Freshman class, graduation followed in three years, and then desiring to complete the education so well begun, he entered Bucknell University, and two years later (1890) graduated with honor.

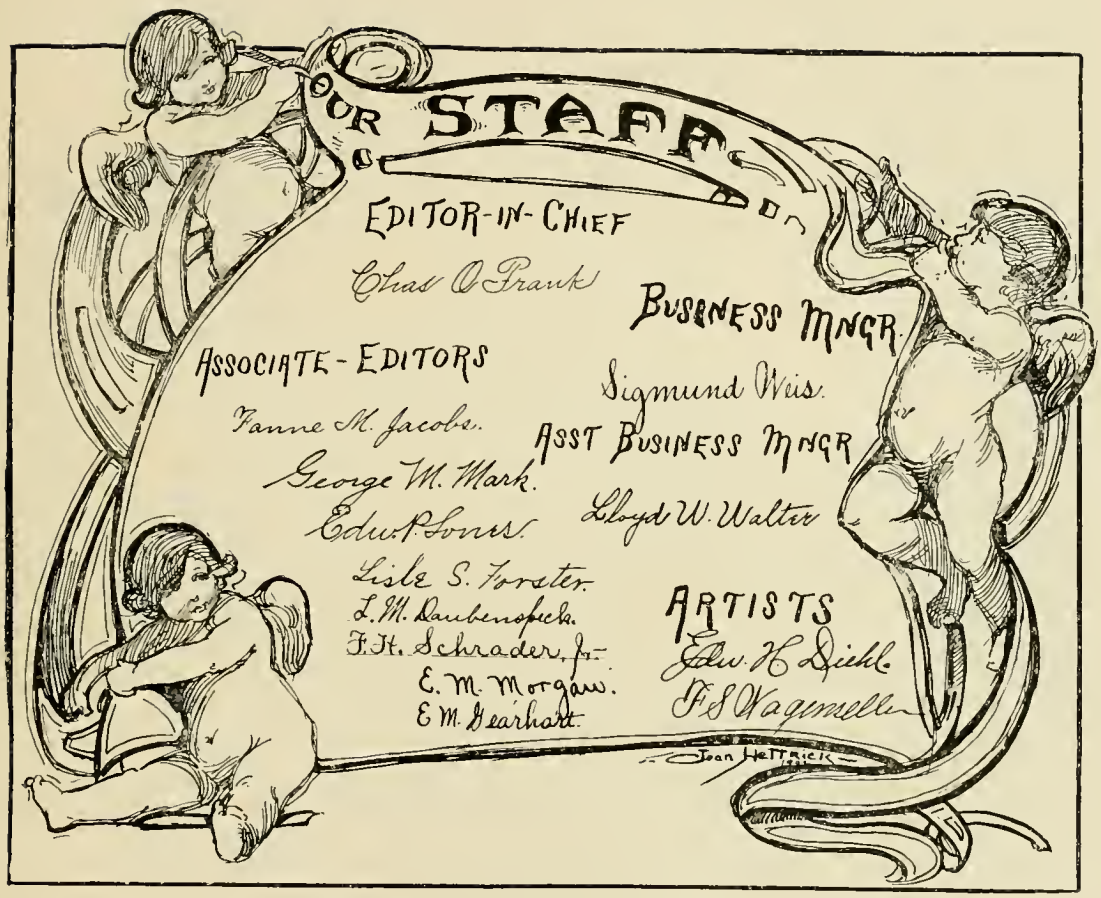

Professor Woodruff entered his chosen profession as Principal of Friend's Normal Institute at Rising Sun, Md. So successful were his efforts here that he was invited to take charge of Mifflintown Academy. While at Mifflintown his Alma Mater called him to the chair of Latin and English, which he accepted in 1892, and has since occupied it with credit to himself, with profit to the student body, and to the satisfaction of the board of directors, which was well manifested when the office of president having been made vacant by resignation of Rev C. W. Heisler, Professor Woodruff was unanimously elected to take charge as Dean. To recount the events connected with the life of our beloved Dean would be superfluous, but if we should look to any enterprise in which Susquehanna's interests are involved, we would find that Professor Woodruff had contributed to it of everything he had of time, strength, knowledge, and means.

Foot-ball was started at Susquehanna mainly by his assistance. Our first team was honored and strengthened by John I. Woodruff as right half-back. And it has been so with every other project that looked to the higher development of the physical side of Susquehanna's student body. But physical development was not matured to the neglect of the mental side. The Shakespearean Club was originated through his efforts, and many hours that he might have spent otherwise with profit and pleasure, he has cheerfully given to those seeking knowledge of the great author.

Susquehanna has every reason to be proud of so good and so worthy an Alumnus, especially now that such well earned success has so recalled his efforts that our University looks to him as its head. Let every man, every woman, every Alumnus, every student, every friend press around to sustain the hands that are struggling with might and main for Susquehanna, and in after years we shall reach that goal when Susquehanna can offer to her sons and daughters not only complete education, but also a peerless name.

"We are judged for our failures, loved for our faults, and hated for our virtues."

Faculty and Instructors.

Rev. J. R. DIMM. D. D.. Professor of Political Economy and International Law.

Born near Muncy, Lycoming Co., Pa., in 1830. Having prepared for college, he entered Pennsylvania College, from which he graduated with first honors in 1857. In the same year he assumed management of the classical school near Aaronsburg, Centre Co., Pa., and in 1874 became principal of the Lutherville Female Seminary. During his administration of six years, he raised the standard of scholarship and left it well organized. In 1882, owing to his well known qualities as a teacher, he was called to Missionary Institute as principal of the classical department and later became President of Susquehanna University. In 1899, on account of failing health, he was obliged to resign the Presidency. Dr. Dimm has done much for Susquehanna University, and has made her what she is.

Rev. JACOB YUTZY. D. D.. Professor of Semitic Languages and Dogmatics.

Born at Salisbury, Somerset Co., Pa., May 24, 1847. Having taught several terms in the public schools, he entered the Preparatory Department of Roanoke College in 1869. After two years he entered the Freshman class at Pennsylvania College, graduating in 1876 During his classical course he was awarded the Freshman Prize, Hessler's Latin Medal, the First Honor and Latin Salutatory. He then entered the Seminary and graduated in Theology, 1879. He served as pastor of the Boalsburg charge, 1879-'82. He was then called to the Trinity Lutheran church, of Selinsgrove, Pa., where he served with great ability for thirteen years. In 1895 he was elected to the chair of Semitic Languages in Susquehanna University, a position which he has very ably filled down to the present time.

Rev. T. C. HOUTZ. A. M.. Professor of Mathematics and Astronomy.

Born at Lemont, Centre Co., Pa., Sept. 28, 1853. He prepared for college at Boalsburg Academy and the Preparatory Department of State College, and a year later entered the Freshman class in the same institution, winning the McCallister Prize for standing on entrance to college. During his course in college he added two more prizes to his laurels. In 1879 he received A. B., and in 1882 the degree of A. M. was conferred on him. In 1883 he became Principal of Rock Springs Academy, and during the next years was Principal of the Pine Grove Academy. He entered the Theological Department of Missionary Institute, 1885. In 1886 he became Professor of Mathematics and Vice-Principal of Missionary Institute. This position he held until 1894, when he was given the chair of Mathematics and Astronomy.

JOHN BROWN FOCHT. Professor of Church History and Homiletics.

Born at Chambersburg, Pa., July 20, 1851. His father, Rev. David Henlein Focht, died in 1864 at New Bloomfield, Pa.; he was one of the founders of the Missionary Institute, Selinsgrove, Pa. The mother of the subject of this sketch, Mrs. Susan (Brown)

Focht, is yet living, at Lewisburg, Pa. In August, 1866, Mr. Focht entered Missionary Institute, and in 1871 he became a member of the Sophomore class in Gettysburg College, Pa. In 1873 he was awarded the Hessler Gold Medal for Proficiency in Latin, and was graduated in 1874 with First Honor and the Valedictory. During 1875-'76 he was Proctor in Gettysburg College, and became Principal of the Preparatory Department, Pennsylvania State College, in 1876-'77. In 1877 he was graduated from the Theological Seminary at Gettysburg, Pa. In the same year he became Vice-Principal of Missionary Institute, where he continued until 1882, having become Principal in 1881. He was made Principal of the Preparatory Department, Gettysburg College, in 1882, in which position he remained till 1887. In October, 1887, he was called to the pastorate of St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church, of Lewistown, Pa. After serving here for seven years he became pastor of St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran Church, of Barren Hill, Pa. Having received a call to Trinity Lutheran Church, of Selinsgrove, Pa., in 1899, he became pastor of this church, where he now resides.

In the fall of 1899, he gave instructions in Homiletics in the School of Theology of Susquehanna University, and at present, 1901-'02, is engaged in teaching Church History and Homiletics.

GEORGE E. FISHER, Ph. B., Professor of Natural Sciences.

Born Jan. 17, 1869, at Kreamer, Snyder Co., Pa. He attended public school near Salem, and entered Missionary Institute in 1884, and graduated in 1888. He received Ph. B. from Bucknell in 1891, and A. M. in 1894. He was Principal of the Friend's Normal Institute, Md., 1891-1892; Professor of Natural Sciences at Bucknell Academy, 1892-1896; Professor of Natural Sciences at Susquehana University, an office which he has very ably filled down to the present time. He organized the Society of Natural Sciences.

HERBERT A. ALLISON, Professor of the Greek Language, Literature and History.

Born July 24, 1874, near Gettysburg. In 1889 he entered the Preparatory Department of Pennsylvania College, and the following year entered college. He received honorable mention for the Freshman Prize, and for Junior Latin Prize. In 1894 he graduated with first honors, and in 1897 received the degree of A. M. He was Professor of Mathematics at Palatinate College, Myerstown, Pa., in 1894, and in 1895 and '96 studied law. He became a professor in Susquehanna University in 1896. He organized the Historical Society in 1901. Prof. Allison is a thorough scholar, and has great executive ability, which has won the confidence of the student body.

A. W. POTTER, Esq., Professor of Jurisprudence.

Born in Huntingdon Co., Pa., Jan. 7, 1847. His youth was spent in Mifflin Co., and his education was completed in the same county. He studied law with George E. Elder, of Lewistown, and was admitted to the bar at that place. In 1872 he came to Selinsgrove, where he has since practiced law. On Jan. 1, 1900, he was made Professor of Jurisprudence at Susquehanna University. He is excellently versed in law, and has won the highest respect of all who come under his instruction.

PERCIVAL HERMAN, M. D., Lecturer on Sanitary Science.

Born Sept. 13, 1851, near Selinsgrove, Snyder Co., Pa. He spent his early life on the farm, and attending public schools during the winter. Having ta kn a course in Missionary Institute, he taught in the public schools. He was thus employed for six years, in the meantime taking lessons in medicine. He graduated with first honors from the Cincinnati College of Medicine and Surgery in 1876, and began to practice his profession at Kratzerville, Pa. In 1897 he was appointed a member of the Middleburg Pension Board, and in 1900 became Lecturer on Sanitary Science in Susquehanna University.

WM. NOETLING, A. B., Professor of Pedagogy in the Normal Department.

Prof. Noetling received his early education at Mifflinburg Academy. He prepared for college at New Berlin and Lewisburg, and entered Union College at Schenectady, N. Y., where he graduated with high standing in 1857. Prof. Noetling served first as Vice-Principal of Missionary Institute, Principal of the Grammar School at Belleville, Ill., Principal of the Waynesboro Select School, County Superintendent, and has been Professor of Science and Art of Teaching at the Bloomsburg Normal for the past twenty-three years; became Professor of Pedagogy of Susquenanna University, 1901.

FOSTER C. FISHER, A. B., Principal of Academic Department.

Born March 14, 1872, at Smithgrove, Snyder Co., Pa. He completed the prescribed course in the public schools, and entered Missionary Institute, graduating in 1894. He entered the Junior class of Bucknell University, and graduated in 1896 and received the degree of A. B. the same year. In 1896 he became Principal of the Preparatory Department of Susquehanna University, which position he has filled with considerable ability, and with manifest success.

Miss ETHELYNN MAE VAN WAGNER, Professor of Vocal and Instrumental Music.

Born Jan. 30, 1879, at Brookfield, N. Y. After passing the various grades of the public schools, she entered the High School at Shelburne, N. Y. Desiring a more complete course in music, she entered the New York College of Music. Her musical training was completed by a three years' course in Oberlin University, in which she won much distinction. Miss Van Wagner has taught in the Oberlin Conservatory, Elizabeth College, Charlotte, N. C., and in the autumn of 1900 became Professor of Vocal and Instrumental Music at Susquehanna University.

EDWARD F. DUNLAVY, Professor of Elocution and Oratory.

Born near Scio, Harrison Co., O. He entered Scio College in 1894, taking up oratory in connection with the classical course. His mind being bent on oratory, he entered Dr.

King's Summer School at Ebensburg, Pa., and in 1899 entered King's School of Oratory at Pittsburg, from which he graduated in 1900, winning the gold medal for delivering the best oration in the class. During the summer of 1900 he taught elocution in Scio College, from which institution he came to become Professor of Elocution and Oratory in Susquehanna University. The Professor is a very pleasing speaker, and has won the respect of all.

W. H. BRUCE CARNEY, Professor of German.

Born in Mifflin County, Pa. Beginning at seventeen years of age in the ungraded schools, he has taught in all the various grades up to and including the High School. His training was secured at Millersville Normal, Pennsylvania College, and in Berlin, Germany, where he studied the modern languages under native teachers. He is now in charge of the Modern Language Department of Susquehanna. Mr. Carney has shown marked ability and is esteemed by all.

Miss CAROLINE R. ENDERS, Instructress in the Preparatory Department.

Began her eventful life in Deerfield, N. J., June 26, 1875. Great care was exercised to make the first steps of her education thorough. She entered the Kindergarten at Richmond, but her progress was so rapid that she was soon promoted to the public schools of that place. At the early age of eleven she entered the New York Collegiate Institute, and after five years of earnest study graduated in '91. She then went to Lutherville Seminary, now Maryland College, Md., and graduated two years later. The same year she entered Patrick's Business College of York, graduating in '94. The next four years Miss Enders taught music and German in the Y. W. C. A. of York. In the fall of '98 she accepted a position as teacher of German, English and Elocution in Hartwick Seminary, N. Y., from which place she was called to Susquehanna University, which has received an excellent teacher.

LEVI P. YOUNG, Professor of Greek in the Preparatory Department.

Born July 12th, 1874, at Belleville, Pa. After special preparation at Bloomsburg Normal, he began teaching and continued in the profession six years, being Principal of High School two years. He entered the Freshman Class at Susquehanna University in the fall of 1897, and graduated with the honors of his class in 1901. He taught three years in the Preparatory Department while taking his college course, and at present has charge of the Greek in the Preparatory Department. Mr. Young is a very able teacher, as well as having a manner that is highly pleasing to all, and has won for him many friends both in and outside of College.

JOHN C. BECK, Instructor in the Business Department.

Born in Orwigsburg, Schuylkill County, Pa. He received his early education in the public schools and the Arcadian Institute there under Professor Elias Schneider, and later on under Professor Daniel Frees. Being a young man endowed with business traits he naturally began to fit himself for commercial pursuits, and before he attained his majority, entered and was graduated from the Bryant and Stratton Business College of New York City. After the death of his father he continued the general store business successfully up to the year 1874. He was one of the promoters of the Orwigsburg Shoe Manufacturing Company, and served as treasurer for this corporation a period of eleven years. After severing his connection with this company, he organized and established the firm of Beck, Haeseler & Co. of the same town. Being a careful and thorough accountant, he afterwards devoted his attention to office work, giving instruction and fitting young men for a practical business career. His advent to Selinsgrove dates back to May, 1898, when the shoe factory was established here by T. H. Eisenhuth & Co., and Mr. Beck became their bookkeeper. He also served in a similar capacity for the Main Shoe Company at Middleburg, Pa. The Susquehanna University, feeling the need of a competent and practical man for their Commercial Course, installed Mr. Beck as the instructor in this department, under whose supervision this branch of the institution has made rapid strides.

Senior History.

THE task alloted to the Historian of the Senior class is difficult. About to leave these college walls, we see that the great world has dawned upon us. Go out and meet this world we must. Why should we be compelled to glance backward? To leave the scenes of a calm and placid existence, whatever joys the future may have in store, is but sorrow.

The Senior year seemed so distant at first, and yet how short the time, how quickly at least has a semblance of order been secured out of the chaotic material of the childish nature we brought with us! How differently we see things around us now!

What possibilities and promises of a deeper and more expanded life our years at college has given us. Truly we will never meet another period as were these years spent at Susquehanna—years so short, so free from care, yet so fruitful and vital The call is loud and we will answer. We well recall the times of our Freshmen and Sophomore days. Oh! what great boys and girls we all were! Some were good, some were bad; some went to Sunday school; some sang in the Chapel choir; while others who were handsome and pretty had great pleasure in wooing, but not in wedding. The whole world knew our greatness; even our enemies had to humble themselves before us.

As Juniors we also held our place; although our class was some smaller, we still had fourteen strong and loyal members. We entered the college walls last fall as dignified

Seniors, and were very much delighted to have Mr. Shambaugh with us again instead of going to Yale or Harvard. During this, our last year, how many good times have we had and how many things are written on our memories, never to be forgotten, but to remind us of our happy college days! How well we have been represented in athletics! We have had managers, captains and many star players chosen from our ranks, who have always brought great honors to the class.

Fourteen Seniors are about to leave the college family and become children of an Alma Mater. After our failures and successes we have reached the great cross-roads of life and are now trying to read through the mist the weather-beaten signpost that points out to each one of us a separate pathway. We have often dreamed of and built beautiful air castles on these ways, but now the coming years, with their varied experiences, will teach us their realities. When that time comes how fondly we will look back to the happy days spent at Susquehanna. We depart from her walls, feeling that the years spent under her care will always prove a living spot when scores of winters have whitened the locks of the Seniors of the class of Nineteen-Two. HISTORIAN.

"Most men would find it a difficult matter to tell all they know; not that they know much; but the difficulty would arise in trying to winnow that they do know from what they imagine they know."

Junior Class History.

SOME one has well said, "History is the biography of society." It must be a true exposition of past facts. One is often reluctant in writing a history that is not favorable to his views. But the history of the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Three has not a record that causes any reluctance on the part of the writer, even in narrating its past to the smallest detail. Accordingly the history of this illustrious class will be written accurately.

While this class was in its infancy as Freshman it had to contend with a domineering class of twice its numbers and physical strength. Although the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Three were often baffled, yet by tact and good judgment they were always victorious. They told us we were green; but they found us, on the one hand, as flexible and on the other as inflexible as any dried and well-seasoned hickory.

The beginning of the Sophomore defeats was in this wise: the Freshmen decided to burn Cato in effigy in the public square of Selinsgrove. The "Sophs" were informed at what time the Freshmen were going to burn Cato; but with all their strength of numbers and the needed information, they thought it best to leave the ceremony proceed without interruption. Ah, the Freshmen were all there. And while the duped "Sophs" were climbing around on the spruce trees in the campus looking for mosquitoes and bats, the boys of the "Red and Blue" were cremating Cato in Selinsgrove.

Again, the "Sophs" were defeated when a few of the Freshmen had their picture taken in the laboratory. Oh, how happy they were, thinking they had spoiled the occasion for the picture! But how dismayed they looked a few days after when they viewed the ghastly picture of the Freshmen. They even became desperate. In all haste they dispatched one of their number to go to Studentville and demand the plate from the photographer's wife while he was away.

There must be recorded another victory for the "Red and Blue." This took place on January 4, 1900. Great tact had been employed in preparing for the banquet which came up to the expectation of the class in every particular. The "Sophs" had been sidetracked again, but in order to alleviate the sting of defeat they sent six of their representative men to view the sumptuous repast of the Freshmen. This only made matters worse. The host asked them to leave. In their desperate plight one asked, "May we not remain in the bar-room?" To this he consented. Nevertheless, their delegates got a glimpse of a banquet after which they might well pattern their own. In this manner the brave and sagacious little Class of '03 held its own all through its first college year. After a year's use of ponies and other necessary helps they were promoted to the Sophomore class.

In the Sophomore year the Class of '03 was obliged to spend half a day spanking their "babies," after which lesson they conducted themselves as obedient and humble Freshmen ought.

And now as Juniors, with such an untrammeled past, they are feared and respected by all their contemporaries. In looking back they need have no regret or shame for their past deeds. They have always acted fearlessly and with decision when there was need of action. In treading over the threshold of the present it is with some anxiety, mingled with hope, that they look into the future.

HISTORIAN.

Classmates.

There's a golden chain that binds us,
In these passing college days,
There's a fellowship that's lasting
'Round which our memory plays.
But of all the ties that bind us,
And of all the friendships dear,
There are none so close as class ties
With their fellowships so pure.

With what pride our elders tell us:
"We were classmates when at school,
And whatever he was up to
There you'd find me as a rule."
Thus they speak of days long ended,
Thus they tell of doings past,
When you speak of some acquaintance
Who at school with them was classed.

* * * * * *

So it is with us in college.
Take a classmate by the hand;
You can say: "Well met, my brother."
And your heart goes with your hand,
For there's something draws us closer,—
As we study year by year,—
Helps to bind us to each other
As we share reverses here.

Yes, it makes the heart beat freer
And the eye light up with pride,
When, in answer to some question,
"He's my classmate," we've replied.
But whatever others tell us,
Somehow it seems to me
That the bond is even stronger
In the class of Nineteen-Three.

We who've studied here together,
 Learned to know each other well,
Do not know how close it binds us,
 For we cannot really tell
Till the time comes for the parting,—
 The dividing of the ways,—
Then we'll look with fond remembrance
 To our jolly classmate days.

Then I'd like to join my tribute,
 In my weak aad feeble way,
To the classmates of Naught-Threedom,
 Those who have met us day by day.

May the golden chain that binds us
 Ever stronger, closer grow,
And success attend our efforts,
 Wherever we may go.
May we meet with double measure,
 Whate'er our aims may be,
And the smiles of fortune seek us,
 Classmates all of Nineteen-Three.

Sophomore History.

TIME rolls on, and the Class of '04 has added another year to its history. Although we are the weakest class, as to numbers, in the College, yet our accomplishments, as a class, have been very gratifying. Nights of study and days of pleasant associations with one another have been our experiences, and the "Red and White," our symbol of "true bravery and purity," still stands as the emblem of our little band. We commenced this year with but six members. Some of ours of the preceding year had dropped out of our ranks and gone elsewhere. Soon we were again to lose another of our members. Mr. Bulick found it necessary to drop from our ranks. We were all sorry to have him leave us. During the term we had three additions to our class, two of whom have since discontinued these duties. During the last term we received one more member, so that we now number one more than at the opening of the school year last September. We have been an unfortunate class ever since we were in the Preparatory Department, in losing members. But amid all these discouraging features we are still pressing on and striving to follow our motto: "Vincit qui se Vincit."

On October 25th occurred the usual "class rush." This event this year was undoubtedly the most interesting affair of its kind in the history of the College. The "Freshies" outnumbered us, but after a fierce contest we succeeded in dislodging them from their position on the third floor of Selinsgrove Hall, and bringing them down on the campus where the contest began anew. At the most critical time, when two of our members had gained an entrance to the roof where the "Freshies' " colors floated at half-mast, and their flag inverted, a sign of distress and death, the Faculty interfered and called the contest to a close. The victory was plainly ours, which fact was confirmed by the majority of the witnesses present.

The Faculty requested the occasion to close with a tug-of-war contest between the two classes. This seemed to us unfair, as the crowd then stood seven Sophomores to eight Freshmen; but we consented on condition that the "Freshies" take down their own flag immediately, which was done.

We note one fact more in our history this year, that, though we are small in numbers, yet our class has furnished no less than four of the regular correspondents to our College Monthly.

HISTORIAN.

"Vincit Qui Se Vincit."

In ages past, in present time,
In ev'ry race and clime,
The world has gloried in heroes
And sung their deeds in rhyme.
How oft have bards, with lips inspired,
Begun their thrilling lays,
Announcing heroes as the theme
Awakening their praise!

This, too, shall be our humble song,
(Though we no poet be),
To sing of noble warriors
On life's wild, stormy sea;
Not val'rous deeds at battle's front,
'Neath awful cannonade,
But those of still far nobler name
Whose glory will not fade.

Mightier battles must be fought
Than those with glist'ning sword;
Where man must fight through weary years
O'er wretched self to lord.
For passions base and low arise
In every honest breast,
To trouble, tempt, and terrify
The soul that seeketh rest.

He is a hero, brave and true,
Who wins in fierce conflict
Against a treach'rous, unseen foe
That pen cannot depict,
Who tramples underneath his feet
His sins and baser part,
And firmly stands for truth and right
With pure and sincere heart.

'Tis true, my beloved classmates,
For nigh the second year,
Ye have entered every battle
Without a sign of fear;
Though fewest ye are in number,
And 'gainst great odds have fought,
The wreath of laurel has crowned you
In all that ye have wrought.

But something more than brawn and strength,
Than intellectual power,
Must 'tend you, struggling wearily
Through every passing hour,
When no friends are nigh to praise you,
No flute to cheer you on,
And foe unseen within your breast
Would bid virtue begone.

All honor, then, to you, my friends,
Who wear the Red and White,
Who struggle with your nobler self
And conquer in the fight.
Still sing, Vincit qui se vincit,"
Brave youth of Nineteen-Four,
And always will men give to you
The name of conqueror.

Freshman History.

LIKE trees which are planted in an orchard where they are pruned and cultivated that they may bear good fruit, we have left our homes and have come tos thi College, where our minds and bodies are receiving such discipline that will lead us into a higher and fuller life. By this simile of the trees I do not mean to confess any of that verdancy which is usually ascribed to Freshmen, although it would be unreasonable to expect us to be as wise as the "Sophs."

We waited long for the "Sophs" to make their presence known. Indeed, we are always anxious to learn, and expected that the wise "Sophs" would try to teach us a few things. But we were disappointed. When it finally appeared that they would not take the lead, we determined to venture forth alone.

'Twas in the early morn of October 25, 1901. The moon shone bright and full, and the keen air sparkled with the silvery radiance. About Selinsgrove Hall everything was wrapped in the stillness of slumber, except the class of '05. Had not the sleep of the "Sophs" been so deep, they might have heard a busy murmur, betraying the activity of the Freshmen. Eagerly they worked, and before the stars grew pale in the east a magnificent pennant of the class of '05 was floating proudly from a lofty staff above the cupola of Selinsgrove Hall.

The sun was already high in the heavens when the "Sophs" arose, and, sauntering leisurely forth, they were amazed at the sight of that banner defiantly waving. Summoning all their forces, they hold a council of war Next the din of battle is heard. After firing several volleys without effect, the "Sophs" rush up the steps, attempting to break through the ranks of the enemy and tear down the hated pennant. At the head of the stairs the braves of '05 stand ready for battle. The two lines clash. The Freshmen are invincible. Not an inch is gained by the "Sophs." Down the steps and out upon the campus the battle surges. Then, at the intervention of the Dean, a truce is declared. A council of the leaders of both sides is held, and it is agreed to settle the contest in a different manner. A "tug-of-war" is agreed upon. A long rope is procured and each class takes its position. At a given signal both sides pull with all their strength. The "Sophs" are seen to yield at the first pull. Inch by inch the Freshmen gain ground until the last "Soph" is pulled across the line and the Freshmen are the victors. Peace was made, and, for a time, College life again flowed smoothly.

On February 10, 1902, occurred the most enjoyable event of our collegiate year. It was the Freshman banquet. The class, accompanied by a number of invited guests, left Selinsgrove for Middleburg, in the afternoon on the 2:25 train. The 'Sophs" were very sorry to see us leave. They came to the depot to say "good-bye" and wish us a happy time; they even wished us to leave our President behind to console them during our absence. Poor "Sophs"! We hope they will not think us unmannerly because we did not comply with their wish. We all arrived safe at our destination and spent the afternoon and evening very pleasantly. Promptly at 12 o'clock all entered the banquet hall and surrounded the well-laden table. Mirth and laughter mingled with the feasting. The festivities were prolonged far into the night, and in the morning the happy party returned to Selinsgrove with joyful recollections that will be retained throughout life.

The above is but a part of our history. It is not only the physical contest that requires strength and courage. It is not only for the banquet that we burn the midnight oil. There are other battles to be fought. There are tasks to be done that require long hours of toil. And as we approach the end of our first collegiate year, we believe the majority of our class can look without regret upon the year's work, and can look forward for still better things in the years yet before us.

HISTORIAN.

Freshman Class Poem.

In the autumn days of nineteen-one,
When the leaves were turning brown,
There was seen some stir in Selinsgrove,
For the Freshmen had come to town.

To the college doors we found our way,
To find out who was where ;
We found our rooms and read the rules
And sat down in despair.

Homesick, perhaps, some one will say.
But, nay, that was not so.
We were the Freshmen, don't you see?
Woe, woe ! woe, woe ! woe, woe !

So, then, of course, we went to class
To find out what to do ;
The professors looked now somewhat stern,
As they gazed at the class so new.

Oh ! we were green, or so 'tis said ;
Perhaps the story's true.
If that's the case we must have changed,
For now behold us,—do.

The class is really small in size,
But that no matter makes ;
Good goods in small amounts appear
And numbers often fake.

We told before in homespun rhyme
How we first felt deep despair,
Because we dreaded the "awful Sophs,"
For they might place us,—where?

But, now, the "Sophs" real nice did act,
And left us quite alone ;
You know old Caesar never warred
When strength for strength was shown.

So peace did reign for many a day,
'Till one morn late in fall,
When, behold, from the flag-pole high in air
Red and Black waved over all.

"They must come down," the "Sophies"
said ;
But the "Freshies" said, "Nay, nay,
Just keep hands off, my little men ;
Our colors are up to stay."

Now, the "Sophies" disobeyed the word,
But, oh ! forgive them, pray ;
They knew not what they tried to do,
Their minds were confused that day.

The faculty ordered a tug of-war
To decide our long dispute ;
Of course we pulled them over the line ;
We can prove it by pictures mute.

Our victory was followed by peace so calm,
And now we feel quite bold.
The name of "Soph" creates no fear,
For they are in the cold.

At length our class real hungry gets
For something good to eat ;
In Middleburg a feast is made,
Our victory is complete.

"Animo, non astutia," yes,
This is our motto true.
Our courage is lauded by every one,
For it has borne us through.

A motto like ours can never fail
To carry us safe to shore,
And others ought to use the same,
Especially the Sophomore.

We hate to chide thee, Sophomore,
Because you higher are,
But thy defects stand out so bold
Thy records they do mar.

And may we ever strive to do
Acts noble, lofty, good,
Not only in chiding the wayward "Sophs,"
But in helping all we should.

O, class of Nineteen-Five, arouse!
Strive harder than before,
Obey strict duty's urgent call,
Grand Wisdom's form adore.

Co-Education at Susquehanna.

By a "Co-Ed."

ONE hundred years ago the staid, stern Puritans of New England and the stately men and dames of the South deliberated long and seriously whether or not it was proper for their daughters to know more than the "three R's," to play the harpsichord or spinet, and attain the feminine accomplishments of cooking, cleaning, spinning, weaving and housekeeping generally. Perhaps now and then some young woman was daring enough to undertake the study of Latin, or even the higher mathematics, but such cases were rare and such a girl was considered rather bold and wanting in delicacy. And if the dignified men and women of that day looked askance at the woman who tried to win her bread by her brains, they would have lifted up their hands in holy horror and righteous indignation at the bare thought of a woman undertaking a course of education similar to that which was then pursued by the men, much less being taught in the same classes with the men. It would have been unladylike and little short of immodest.

But woman gradually began to aspire higher than French and embroidery; and some of the colleges, feeling the demands of a new generation of women, after some deliberation admitted them to classes with the men, and it wasn't long until woman proved that in intellect and capacity for learning she is her brother's equal.

Co education is now, has been for years, and I suppose always will be, a subject for discussion. But let the discussion go on, and pause to consider co-education in our own beloved Susquehanna. This college, formerly Missionary Institute, never refused admittance to women, but, until in 1865, there were no applicants, on account of the flourishing Female College in the same town. In 1869, when the "Susquehanna Female College" had closed, instead of occasional special students, they came in larger numbers, and ever since the "Co-eds" have wielded a vast influence over affairs at "Missionary Institute" and "Susqnehanna."

When the Institute was changed into a College, the "Co-eds" slipped very readily into the new order of things, and it was noticed at once that they wore their caps and gowns with a great deal more ease and dignity than did the men.

Co education at Susquehanna received stimulus when a Ladies' Hall was established, and also the departments of music and oratory, under efficient teachers; thus there is the discipline of a ladies' school, along with the advantages of co-educational work in the class room.

Has co-education been a failure? It has been shown beyond a doubt that both sexes are benefitted by their association in the class-room. Where is there a better place to study a man's or woman's character than in the class room?

Susquehanna has just reasons to feel prond of her "Co-eds," though I say it that shouldn't. In many cases they have led their classes, both in the regular college work and oratory; and after leaving school most of them fill honored positions, some as teachers, others as missionaries, and many as honored wives and mothers. We have two notable examples: the two first lady students of Missionary Institute: One is the wife of the college pastor, the other the wife of the pastor of the Deaconess Mother House.

The Susquehanna girl isn't compelled to marry a minister in order to complete her education. She may shine in any other station she chooses. And now, reader, you may think the writer prejudiced; but just ask the boys how they would like Susquehanna without the "Co-eds."

History of Athletics.

IT may be truly said that Athletics finds in the college arena of the country its real home. This college class of athletics comprises not only the majority of the fraternity at large, but also, with few exceptions, the only legitimate amateur players and athletes we have in the games.

We are glad to note the fact that foot ball has grown in favor among the faculties of our great universities to such an extent that this true college sport scarcely has an opponent among our college faculties. What is good for the universities as a model field sport, must also be suited to the minor colleges and academies. Foot ball not only makes men stronger physically, but the methods of self-denial followed by the players while training for a contest, teaches the men a remarkable lesson, and is a good lesson to prepare them for the sterner denials of actual life. We find many faculties advocating the cause of athletics because it makes men stronger physically and mentally. We find that to be especially true of our faculty. Every branch of athletics which has for its aim the upholding of our college in the inter-collegiate rivalry which is being waged continually for the supremacy in the various branches of athletics, finds them co-operating with the students in conducting the affairs of the association in such a manner as shall be for the glory of Susquehanna, and the greatest good of the student body.

The history of Athletics at Susquehanna in length of time, is but as a season, in achievement, as great as the noble river from which it takes its name. It was on Columbus Day, Oct. 22, 1892, that foot ball was first inaugurated as a college game, by what was then known as Missionary Institute, in a contest waged with Sunbury Athletic Club, represented by a team composed of ex-college players. After the last rush had been made, amid the shouts of triumph, our first gridiron victors were carried from the field of their successful battle upon the shoulders of an exultant student body. This was Susquehanna's initiatory step in foot ball, and this sport has since greatly increased in favor, until it now stands foremost in athletics.

Steadily and slowly did foot ball develop. Many obstacles had to be overcome, but never once did the promoters of the manly game lose heart. It was the overcoming of these inconveniences that paved the way for greater things.

It was in '97 that our institution first enjoyed the services of a regular coach, in the person of Mr. Gilchrist. Under his untiring and competent direction, Susquehanna became a potent factor in inter-collegiate foot ball. During the past year the team has been under the careful eye of Mr. Lang, whom competent critics adjudge to be one of the best all-around players in the country. The season was not as successful as it early gave promise, owing to several unforeseen and unavoidable circumstances, which disrupted the complete organization of the team, and thereby greatly lessened its efficiency. Probably her greatest strength was shown when she scored on Lafayette, and later held the Philadelphia Professionals down to 34 points. Before the season was rightly begun, our star end, "Jack" Davis, was compelled to retire from the game on account of a broken ankle. A little later Captain Wingard resigned and quit playing on account of parental objections.

Base ball has been played more generally for a greater length of time in this country than foot ball, among the different colleges, and nothing could be better adapted for recreative exercise, and exciting, yet harmless sport, than our grand national game. It requires but a moderate amount of time, taken from the hours for study, for practice and training, while in the economy of time and its wide field for exciting and healthy exercise, it surpasses all other field sports in vogue.

The Orange and Maroon made its debut into base ball in the spring of '98. The team met with immediate success. Not once did defeat perch upon her banner, in conflicts waged against some of the foremost colleges of the state. Since this glorious advent we have had varying success, sometimes nearly rivaling the beginning, while at other seasons falling slightly below. The absence of a good coach has been very manifest for several seasons. Without a competent coach, to direct the men and plays, we cannot expect to attain a very excellent standing in inter-collegiate base ball.

It requires cousiderable more training and practice to develop a base ball player than it does to develop a foot ball player. Give a foot ball coach an athletic-built man, who has never played foot ball, and by the end of the season he can develop him into a pretty good player, but it is found to be impossible to develop a base ball player in one season.

In order to have a successful season, we must of course have a winning team. But that alone will not bring the highest success. The teams met must be worthy rivals. College teams should play college teams as often as possible. In order to do this we must retain their friendship, and not become enemies at the least provocation. Last season was perhaps our most disastrous season for several years, owing first to lack of team work, and secondly to the calling off of several games by rain.

Under the careful training of M. H. Fischer and Capt. Gearhart, the first track team at Susquehanna was developed last spring. Considering that it was their first appearance, the men made several remarkable records, which cannot be eclipsed by several of our neighboring colleges. The contests took place during commencement week, and were attended by a large and interested crowd.

Basket ball was enrolled as a mid-winter sport this year for the first time. Under the management of Mr. F. S. Wagenseller, a very strong schedule was secured. Some of the strongest teams in the state were played, among which was the University of Pennsylvania. The team contained several good players, and with this year's experience next year should prove very successful.

IT is not the purpose of the historian to go into a long, detailed account of the past history of Clio. Other historians have touched upon the salient points in her early career, and we are more especially concerned with the immediate past and the living present. However, we dare not wholly overlook the past, for our existence to day is due to the sturdy character of those who composed the membership in the Society's early history; those who withstood the fierce opposition, which went beyond a "healthful rivalry" and sought our extermination, even through violence. Less courageous men might have yielded to the onslaught, but of such character were not Clionians, and the Society exists to-day because of the dauntless spirits who figured in that early period. Neither would we, by a skillful manipulation of language, cast a glamour over the doings of the past year, giving forth an impression incompatible with facts, to which temptation some historians may yield.

The past year has not been phenomenal in any sense, yet there has been a great revival of interest, an awakening among the membership that is quite encouraging. This is clearly evident from the increased attendance over the preceding year and the faithfulness on the part of the performers. The regular sessions have been full of vim, and the productions of a highly creditable character, showing hard work and careful preparation.

A decided step in advance was made when the "regular order of exercises," which has been followed for a quarter of a century, perhaps, was abandoned, and a committee appointed to arrange programs, with a view to bringing still better results on the part of the members than that attained under the old system. The plan has worked admirably, giving variety and sparkle to the meetings, and, above all, bringing out better literary productions. The musical numbers also have been much enjoyed, and we are fortunate in having among our membership so many who can delight us in this manner. Several distinctively special meetings were held during the year, which fit in very acceptably, as evidenced by crowded houses and words of commendation, and gave variety to the general order.

A large number of accessions to membership were made the past year, and while there is a certain inspiration in numbers, yet the main thing is the quality of the number. We have been particularly fortunate in this particular. The interest with which most of the new members have taken hold of the work shows that they are fully aware of the advantages of a literary training, such as the society affords, and are determined to make the best of their opportunities.

In keeping with the good taste of a literary society, our hall has been beautified and a new rostrum put in. The whole thing presents a very pleasing effect and adds much to the comfort and convenience of the Society.

While we have reason to be proud of what has been accomplished in the past, it is well to remember that we are living in the present, and that the present has much to do with the future. Let us continue to be true and loyal, acting wisely and carefully our part, so that when future historians write of the period in which we were active participants, they may do so with pleasure to themselves and credit to us.

Philo History.

A year has passed, and we must once more take up the threads and weave another piece into the splendid fabric of Philo's history. For nearly forty-four years she has been going steadily onward, and can well be proud of her wonderful progress and achievements. Her sons and daughters of former years have gone forth into the world and are there reflecting great credit upon the society that did so much for their development. They can look with pleasure upon the time when their lives and duties were helping to make her history, and when she was helping them that they might some time make history for themselves and for the world. Her present faithful members are keeping well the heritage left to them, and are making her history glorious. Space will permit us to record but a few facts in regard to Philo's progress during the first year of the twentieth century.

A tinge of sadness and regret overshadowed the last session of the society before Commencement of last year, as the members listened to the parting words of those faithful five who went out with the Senior class. They were hard workers, and at their graduation the society sustained a great loss. Among the theologues, three more members were graduated who have done much for the society, and whose absence has not been less deeply felt. But, as these members had hoped, their mantles have fallen upon other willing and faithful shoulders.

On June 15, the third Inter-Society debate took place. Philo had appointed Miss Mildred Focht and Mr. M. H. Fischer, with Mr. L. W. Walters as alternate, to defend the "silver cup" which had been in her possession for one year. These able debaters fought nobly, and as a result the trophy has been adorning the president's desk this year also. On the evening of June 18, Philo's annual reception was held, and was a great success. The opera house was filled by the friends and members of the society, who all spent a very pleasant and sociable evening.

September found most of the members back in their accustomed places, and during the fall term several new names were added to the roll. Throughout the year the debates have been interesting and the general literary work of the society good. February 14 marked a new departure in the form of a mid-year reception. It was a success, and highly enjoyable.

These are a mere collection of facts, uninteresting, perhaps, to the reader, but they form a part of Philo's history, and must have a place here. If not interesting now, they may be in after years. Philo's progress has not been by occasional spurts or strides, but according to the sentiment of her motto, "Non Festinato, non Cessato," steady and ever upward; and thus she continues to grow and move onward.

History of Philomatrian Society.

On the evening of January 10, 1901, in response to an invitation from Mr. Nicholas, a number of students who had served successfully as Managers, Captains or Editors under Susquehanna's colors, assembled to discuss measures for aiding their Alma Mater. After much deliberation, it was decided to organize a society which should seek to promote the interests of the College by word and deed. A committee was appointed to draw up a constitution and by laws, and on January 15th the report of this committee was accepted and an organization was effected. The charter members were C. M. Nicholas, H. D. Hoover, D. J. Snyder, G. A. Livingston, L. P. Young, E. R. Wingard, F. E. Shambaugh, M. H. Fischer, Ira C. Schoch, C. P. MacLaughlin and Professors G. E. Fischer and H. A. Allison.

The object of the society is: "To promote the best interests of the University: (1) By fostering a love for the Alma Mater; (2) By co-operating with all the existing organizations; (3) By stimulating true college spirit, and by animating her sons to more zeal in all her varied branches of activity." The conditions for membership are rigid, and an aspirant for that honor must give ample proofs of having the welfare of the institution at heart before he can hope to attain his end.

The first regular meeting was held on January 28th, at which time the society voted to give a prize of ten dollars for the best essay given to The Susquehanna during the school year. Five months later, June 6th, the society held its annual open meeting, at which time Prof. F. C. Fischer, W. H. Derr, Charles Lambert and D. B. Moist were publicly made members of the society, and the literary prize awarded to Mr. L. M. Daubenspeck.

This year the society is offering two prizes, one of ten dollars for the best literary production published in The Susquehanna before May 1st, and one of five dollars for the best college song. In addition to this an inter-collegiate debate has been arranged between the undergraduates of Juniata College and the undergraduates of the collegiate department of Susquehanna. This will be held at Selinsgrove and Huntingdon on alternate years, the honor falling to us this year. The society is still young, and we look for great good to come from her influence in years to come.

Y. M. C. A. Reception.

Saturday, Sept. 8th, 7.30 P. M.

As is the custom at the opening of each collegiate year, a reception was given by the Y. M. C. A. From a lofty and dignified platform, the audience had the privilege and pleasure to listen to a number of addresses and responses given by the various Professors. As the temperature was none too cool, the wearing of shirt waists was not limited to those of the fair sex, but was granted to all. Uneeda biscuits and cocoa were features of the latter part of the evening. All present had a very good and enjoyable time.

The Amalgamated Association of Bummers.

OF SUSQUEHANNA UNIVERSITY.

By Selins Steddle, Private Box Car No. 41144, Jan. 1, 1902.

The meeting was called to order by the Main Kasabo As no time had been taken out for the last meeting, the reading of the minutes had to be dispensed with. During the meeting a paper, entitled "How I Got My First Back-door Handout," or "Chopping Wood in the West," was read by Lengthy Galbraith, a former member of our order. Another paper entitled "Bummeriology as a Fascinating Science," was sent by one of our representative members who was unable to be present in our midst, owing to his pastoral duties at Hartwick Cemetery. After discussing the important business of the bunch, the election of officers was held The following bums will officiate during the ensuing year:

Main Kasabo, ... J. Teddy Auchmuty
Assistant Squeezer, ... Waddy Heicher
Chief Back-Door Hitter, . . Happy Hooligan Dimm
Royal Keg Drainer, ... J. Pierpont Morgan
Trip Arranger, ... Curved Limblets Walker

Just Common Bums.

Big Chief Eph,	Eight-Cent Ante Brown,
Rest and Sleep Bowersox,	Bashful Bingham,
Beelie Swank,	Hagen Young.

The Young men who have proven adaptability for getting out of work, and have passed the preliminary examinations for becoming allied with our sacred order, are:

Salmion Smith,	Pete Camerer,
Orionabus Sabbath,	Doc Tool,
Willie Leel (?) Brown,	Skinny Allison,
W. Lykens Price,	Iago Allenbach.

The meeting closed with the solemn exercises of docorating, with tomato cans, the busts of our departed brethren, "Lengthy," "Cack," "Red," "Bobby," "Rabbi," "Mench" and "Kid." They have passed from our midst, and their names have become as sweet memories, Their many deeds of chivalry and daring are as guides to their successors.

"Scribe."

What the Skeleton Saw and Heard.

Just as the town clock on the tower of the City Hall (?) in Selinsgrove was pealing forth the solemn hour of midnight, while the wind was howling with a hollow moan, and the sleet fell in sheets against the windows, eight ghostly forms might have been seen stealing into the laboratory. On account of the weirdness of the hour, and the light fantastic movement of the forms, one might have thought that they were spirits of the departed come back to visit their Alma Mater. I, standing in the corner, was aroused from my slumber by certain unearthly noises. Gradually becoming enraged, my hollow eye sockets began to glow with a horrible green light, when suddenly spitting forth fire and brimstone, by the light of which I beheld the pale, frightened countenances of Percy Swank and his "air tight bunch."

After a few moments of wild consternation and breathless agony, finding that the causes of their fright were but poor me—the skeleton, and the result of their wild imaginations and over wrought nerves, they decided to hold their class meeting

Percival Swank, displaying his oratorical training: "Dearly beloved, the object of our assembling is for the purpose of ascertaining whether we shall hold our initial class banquet this year (Thumb-nail applause) We are now ready to hear from the members."

SinClair: "Mr. President, inasmuch as I have partaken for six months of the banquets served by 'Uncle Adam,' without coming up with my ante, I am in favor of having a class feed."

Barry, (jumping up in haste): "But, Mr President, I have some remarks to make before a motion is made." ('We don't want to hear your trouble") ("Order!" in a hoarse whisper by Swank). "As I give three cents a month to the Y. M. C. A., seven cents a month to Christian Endeavor, and eleven cents a term to foreign missions, I strongly object to a class banquet.'' (Groans and hisses.)

Katharine de Medici Focht: ''Well, I am tired of existing on a diet of 'schnitz und knepp' seven days out of a week. I think Fritzie you are real mean, so you are. (''Go it, Katie''). Just don't listen to him; we didn't have a banquet last year, and I am tired of being guyed, so I am.'' (Sinks down and weeps in Alvira Breimeier's arms)

Banty Gunderman: ''I emphatically uphold my chum, and I think, Katie, you were entirely out of order in your remarks. I don't care to pose as the fool in Scripture who said: 'Soul, take thine ease, eat, drink and be merry.' Have your old banquet; I won't have anything to do with it. Come on, Freddie, lets leave this worldly crowd.'' (Exit Barry the Celestial and Banty.)

Ketterman, (starting to leave:) ''Ach! Come on, 'Bat' and SinClair, lets go over in your room and have a feast of cheese sandwiches and hard cider; dis crowd has no sporting blood.'' (Confusion).

The last thing I saw before I resumed my slumbers, from which I had been so rudely awakened, was Calvin with Katie and Alvira on either side, in tears, going out into the tempest, which was still raging with unabated fury.

25. Walters entertains his parents and Guss is busy soliciting callers.
26. Price's moustache a slow but steady grower. Rain.
27. Morgan and Eph get it in the neck in History. Eph recites to Mr. Young.
28. Big Chief attends a pow-wow. Morgan quite gallant, and blows himself very much to attend phonograph entertainment.
29. Professor Whitmoyer gives a lecture on ponies, for benefit of High School students.
30. Guss gets his hair cut.
31. Great Lilian disturbance in Clio.

February.

1. Bloomsburg gets it in the neck.
2. Rain.
3. Mr. Barry earns fifty cents. "What are you doing, Mr. Barry?"
4. Miss Haas wears Clio's colors.
5. Dimm calls at Stone Mansion and decides not to attend Othello at Sunbury.
7. John Alden and Priscilla play their roll nicely. Morgan whistles solo.
8. Everyone goes wild over Pennyslvania.
10. Kempfer borrows his chum's girl for Freshman Banquet General excitement.
11. M. H. Fischer sings a duet in chapel and everybody joins in the "amen."
12. Seniors have troubles of their own. Walters and Fanne receive a lecture on "Children and Dunces" from Professor Hontz.
13. Chapel desks elaborately marked by terms peculiar to Loydie and Fanne.
14. Smith nearly has an explosion. Dimm attends a valentine party and loses his foolish heart.
15. La Belle Marie. Shambaugh loses his nerve.
16. Shambaugh joins anti-profanity club.
17. Sing "There is a Green Hill Far Away" in Chapel for a change. Garnes fills pulpit at Milton. Guss trades hats at Sunbury and comes home late.
18. Minnie receives her letter.

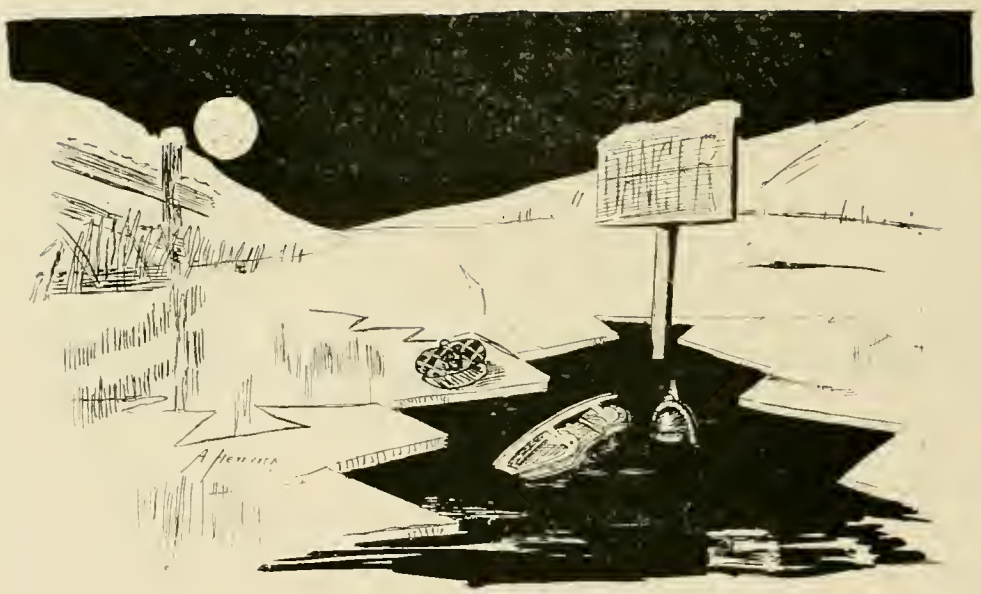

20. "Dorm" girls have picture taken at Sunbury. Eph and Sig scrap. Schrader suffers.
21. Morgan in History—"During certain seasons the land was overflown."
22. Battersby goes to the chicken and waffle supper.
23. Stauffer preaches a very powerful sermon; in some respects being almost Zechmanian. Hans and Sunday quarantined.
24. Diehl gets the measles.
26. Another letter received by Minnie. Zack's room bombarded by snow balls.
27. Meeting of Students' Senate.
28. Water! Water! Water! Young and Frank Wade.

March.

1. The "Jolly Four" visit Bake Oven Hill. Walter does the Mademoiselle Zozo act.
2. Weller and Snyder decide not to leave campus for a week. All communications cut off from outside world.
3. Morgan refuses basket-ball game, and indulges in trolley car conductor movements.
4. Loidie and Lisle hold hands in class. Sones to Professor in Philosophy: "This jigger, I don't know what to call it."
5. Eph gets hot at table because his motion failed to carry.
7. Guss and Professor discuss Metaphysics in Greek.
8. Great time at Vassaliner to night. "Gym" team has picture taken.
9. Stauffer loses his job as traditional narrator of Delmonico's Boarding Club.
10. Weller to Kline: "This is a very solemn occasion."
11. Eph reports arrival of usual letter at "Dorm."
12. "There is a Green Hill Far Away," for a change in chapel. Stella to Morgan: "Ed, take your nose out of the way, it hurts mine."
13. Senior fence objects to being the resting place of Freshman, and Allenbach makes an unceremonious descent.
14. "Tempus fugat similes Hades."
15 Morgan gets a new pair of socks. Lisle slaps Walter's fingers. Walter extremely good.
17. Allenbach loyal to St. Patrick. Celebration in Allison's room. Prof. Brigham Young gets rid of some demerits by giving ten to each of the participants. Guss trades hats at Sunbury and misses connections.
18. Postmaster Gearhart, Jr., reports another letter at "Dorm." Barnyard melodies on third floor. Billy shaves his moustache.
19 German class very industrious to-night.
20. Dewey gets an "S." Sunday does good dumbell work. Gundy suffers from an explosion.
21. Misery ended. Vacation. Chronicler takes a much needed rest.

Acknowledgments.

We hereby tender our most hearty thanks to all who have in any way rendered us assistance in the preparation of this Annual, whether by cordial words of encouragement, kindly suggestion, or practical assistance. We wish, in particular, to express our obligations to Prof. W. H. Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hetrick, George Schoch, Miss Grace Weller, and our former classmate, H. R Haus.—EDITORS.

What in the world to give a friend?

College men know and the New Haven Union says apropos of term-end with its good-bys: "The question of what in the world to give a friend at parting seems to have been solved by the publication of

Songs of all the Colleges which is alike suitable for the collegian of the past, for the student of the present, and for the boy (or girl) with hopes; also for the music-loving sister, and a fellow's best girl.

"All the NEW songs, all the OLD songs,
"and the songs popular at all the colleges;
"a welcome gift in any home anywhere."
